

MARK CAUDLE, PHD

ASSOCIATE, DAYTON AEROSPACE, INC.

PROFILE

Seasoned researcher and educator with 35 years of experience in project, acquisition and life cycle logistics management acquired through a unique combination of both practical experience in major weapon system acquisition programs, graduate education in systems management and business logistics, and teaching multiple courses related to business and project management at both the graduate and professional continuing education levels. Served on the Air Force Institute of Technology (AFIT) School of Systems and Logistics faculty developing and delivering, via both live classroom instruction and distance learning methods, professional continuing education courses to acquisition professionals and others. Led the creation and/or modification of several courses, including two courses using agile methodologies: an asynchronous, distance learning course on Air Force Should Cost management, and a synchronous, in-person course on industry-standard project management. Major, US Air Force (USAF) and GS-14, Department of the Air Force (DAF), retired.
